THE RELIGIOUS MOVIE by Dr. Robert McCurry

Rick Warren, others, rent theaters for premiere of 'Son of God.'

Christian leaders, including mega-church pastor Rick Warren, plan to rent every screen in numerous multiple theaters across 10 cities for the premiere of Mark Burnett and Roma Downey's upcoming film, 'Son of God,' on Feb. 27. — Warren may have a vested interest in the film, since he wrote a curriculum tied to the film and published by LifeWay Christian Resources.

"The couple behind the show, producer Burnett and former "Touched by an Angel" star Downey, have enlisted interdenominational support from religious leaders such as Texas mega-church pastor T.D. Jakes and Roman Catholic Archbishop Jose Gomez of Los Angeles.

"The couple is close with Houston megachurch leaders Joel and Victoria Osteen, who flew to Morocco to see the filming and have bought 8,000 tickets to distribute. — Washington Cardinal Donald Wuerl has commissioned discussion guides and videos for Catholic churches and schools, and Archbishop Thomas Wenski of Miami is planning to rent a theater for thousands of Catholics in Miami."

The Menace of the Religious Movie by A.W. Tozer (1897-1963) - complete article

This article is taken from the book:
Tozer on Worship and Entertainment.

<http://educate-yourself.org/cn/menaceofreligiousmoviebytozer.shtml>

"The temptation to introduce "new" things into the work of God has always been too strong for some people to resist. The Church has suffered untold injury at the hands of well-intentioned but misguided persons who have felt that they know more about running God's work than Jesus and His apostles did. — These things have been, one and all, positive hindrances to the progress of the Truth, and have so altered the divinely-planned structure that the apostles, were they to return to earth today, would scarcely recognize the misshapen thing which has resulted." A.W. Tozer.

When God gave to Moses the blueprint of the Tabernacle He was careful to include every detail; then, lest Moses should get the notion that he could improve on the original plan, God warned him solemnly, "And look that thou make them after their pattern, which was shown thee in the mount." God, not Moses, was the architect. To decide the plan was the prerogative of the Sovereign God. No one dare alter it so much as a hair-breadth.

The New Testament Church also is built after a pattern. Not the doctrines only but the methods are divinely given. The doctrines are expressly stated in so many words. Some of the methods followed by the early New Testament Church had been given by direct command; others were used by God's specific approval, having obviously been commanded the apostles by the spirit. The point is that when the New Testament canon was closed the blueprint for the age was complete. God has added nothing since that time.

From God's revealed plan we depart at our peril.

Every departure has two consequences, the immediate and the remote. The immediate touches the individual and those close to him; the remote extends into the future to unknown times, and may expand so far as to influence for evil the whole Church of God on earth.

The temptation to introduce "new" things into the work of God has always been too strong for some people to resist. The Church has suffered untold injury at the hands of well-intentioned but misguided persons who have felt that they know more about running God's work than Jesus and His apostles did. A solid train of box cars would not suffice to haul away the religious truck (garbage) which has been brought into the service of the Church with the hope of improving on the original pattern. These things have been, one and all, positive hindrances to the progress of the truth, and so have altered the divinely-planned structure that the apostles, were they to return today, would scarcely recognize the misshapen thing which has resulted.

Our Lord while on earth cleansed the Temple, and periodic cleansings have been necessary in the Church of God throughout the centuries. Every generation is sure to have its ambitious amateur to come up with some shiny gadget which he proceeds to urge upon the priests before the altar. That the Scriptures do not justify its existence does not seem to bother him at all. It is brought in anyway and presented in the very name of Orthodoxy. Soon it is identified in the minds of the Christian public with all that is good and holy. Then, of course, to attack the gadget is to attack the Truth itself. This is an old familiar technique so often and so long practiced by the devotees of error that I marvel how the children of God can be taken in by it.

We of the evangelical faith are in the rather awkward position of criticizing Roman Catholicism for its weight of unscriptural impediments and at the same time tolerating in our own churches a world of religious frippery as bad as holy water or the elevated host. Heresy of method may be as deadly as heresy of message. Old-line Protestantism has long ago been smothered to death by extra-scriptural rubbish. Unless we of the gospel churches wake up soon we shall most surely die by the same means.

Within the last few years a new method has been invented for imparting spiritual knowledge; or, to be more accurate, it is not new at all, but is an adaption of a gadget of some years standing, one which by its origin and background belongs not to the Church but to the world. Some within the fold of the Church have thrown their mantle over it, have "blessed it with a text" and are now trying to show that it is the very gift of God for our day. But, however eloquent the sales talk, it is an unauthorized addition nevertheless, and was never a part of the pattern shown us on the mount.

I refer of course, to the religious movie.

For the motion picture as such I have no irrational allergy. It is a mechanical invention merely and is in its essence amoral; that is, it is neither good nor bad, but neutral. With any physical object or any creature lacking the power of choice it could not be otherwise. Whether such an object is useful or harmful depends altogether upon who uses it and what he uses it for. No moral quality attaches where there is no free choice. Sin and righteousness lie in the will. The motion picture is in the same class as the automobile, the typewriter, or the radio: a powerful instrument for good or evil, depending upon how it is applied.

For teaching the facts of physical science the motion picture has been useful. The schools have used it successfully to teach habits to children. The army employed it to speed up instruction during the war. That it has been of real service within its limited field is freely acknowledged here.

Over against this is the fact that the motion picture in evil hands has been a source of moral corruption to millions. No one who values his reputation as a responsible adult will deny that the sex movie and the crime movie have done untold injury to the lives of countless young people in our generation. The harm lies not in the instrument itself, but in the evil will of those who use it for their own selfish ends.

I am convinced that the modern religious movie is an example of the harmful misuse of a neutral instrument. There are sound reasons for my belief. I am prepared to state them.

That I may be as clear as possible, let me explain what I do and do not mean by the religious movie. I do not mean the missionary picture nor the travel picture which aims to focus attention upon one or another section of the world's greatest harvest field. These do not come under consideration here.

By the religious movie I mean that type of motion picture which attempts to treat spiritual themes by dramatic representation. These are (as their advocates dare not deny) frank imitations of the authentic Hollywood variety, but the truth requires me to say that they are infinitely below their models, being mostly awkward, and, from an artistic standpoint, hopelessly and piteously bad.

These pictures are produced by acting a religious story before the camera. Take for example the famous and beautiful story of the Prodigal Son. This would be made into a movie by treating the narrative as a scenario. Stage scenery would be set up, actors would take the roles of Father, Prodigal Son, Elder Brother, etc. There would be plot, sequence and dramatic denouement as in the ordinary tear-jerker shown at the Bijou movie house on Main Street in any one of a thousand American towns. The story would be acted out, photographed, run onto reels and shipped around the country to be shown for a few wherever desired.

The "service" where such a movie would be shown might seem much like any other service until time for the message from the Word of God. Then the lights would be put out and the picture turned on. The "message" would consist of this movie. What followed the picture would, of course, vary with the circumstances, but often an invitation song is sung and a tender appeal is made for erring sinners to return to God.

Now, what is wrong with all this? Why should any man object to this or go out of his way to oppose its use in the house of God? Here is my answer:

1. It violates the scriptural law of hearing. The power of speech is a noble gift of God. In his ability to open his mouth and by means of words make his fellows know what is going on inside his mind, a man shares one of the prerogatives of the Creator. In its ability to understand the spoken word the human mind rises unique above all the lower creation. The gift which enables a man to translate abstract ideas into sounds is a badge of his honor as made in the image of God.

Written or printed words are sound symbols and are translated by the mind into hearing. Hieroglyphics and ideograms were, in effect, not pictures but letters, and the letters were agreed-upon marks which stood for agreed-upon ideas. Thus words, whether spoken or written, are a medium for the communication of ideas. This is basic in human nature and stems from our divine origin.

It is significant that when God gave to mankind His great redemptive revelation He couched it in words. "And God spake all these words" very well sums up the Bible's own account of how it got here. "Thus saith the Lord" is the constant refrain of the prophets. "The words that I speak unto you, they are spirit, and they are life," said our Lord to His hearers. Again He said, "He that heareth my word, and believeth on him that sent me, hath everlasting life." Paul made words and faith to be inseparable: "Faith cometh by hearing, and hearing by the word of God." And he also said, "How shall they hear without a preacher?" (Romans 10:14). Seeing or hearing? "And the Lord spake to you out of the midst of the fire: ye heard the voice of the words, but saw no similitude, only you heard the voice.” (Deut 4:12).

Surely it requires no genius to see that the Bible rules out pictures and dramatics as media for bringing faith and life to the human soul.

The plain fact is that no vital spiritual truth can be expressed by a picture. Actually all any picture can do is to recall to mind some truth already learned through the familiar medium of the spoken or written word. Religious instruction and words are bound together by a living cord and cannot be separated without fatal loss. The spirit itself, teaching soundlessly within the heart, makes use of ideas previously received into the mind by means of words.

If I am reminded that modern religious movies are “sound” pictures, making use of the human voice to augment the dramatic action, the answer is easy. Just as far as the movie depends upon spoken words it makes pictures unnecessary; the picture is the very thing that differentiates between the movie and the sermon. The movie addresses its message primarily to the eye, and the ear only incidentally. Were the message addressed to the ear as in the Scriptures, the picture would have no meaning and could be omitted without loss to the intended effect. Words can say all that God intends them to say, and this they can do without the aid of pictures.

According to one popular theory the mind receives through the eye five times as much information as the ear. As far as the external shell of physical facts is concerned this may hold good, but when we come to spiritual truth we are in another world entirely. In that world the outer eye is not too important. God addresses His message to the hearing ear. “We look,” says Paul, “not at the things which are seen, but at the things which are not seen; for the things which are seen are temporal; but the things which are not seen are eternal” (2 Cor. 4:18). This agrees with the whole burden of the Bible, which teaches us that we should withdraw our eyes from beholding visible things, and fasten the eyes of our hearts upon God while we reverently listen to His uttered words.

“The word is nigh thee, even in thy mouth, and in thy heart: that is, the word of faith, which we preach” (Romans 10:8). Here, and not somewhere else, is the New Testament pattern, and no human being, and no angel from heaven has any right to alter that pattern.

2. The religious movie embodies the mischievous notion that religion is, or can be made, a form of entertainment.

This notion has come upon us lately like a tidal wave and is either openly taught or tacitly assumed by increasing numbers of people. Since it is inextricably bound up with the subject under discussion I had better say more about it.

The idea that religion should be entertaining has made some radical changes in the evangelical picture within this generation. It has given us not only the “gospel” movie but a new type of religious journalism as well. It has created a new kind of magazine for church people, which can be read from cover to cover without effort, without thought—and without profit. It has also brought a veritable flood of religious fiction with plastic heroines and bloodless heroes like no one who has ever lived upon this well-known terrestrial ball.

That religion and amusement are forever opposed to each other by their very essential natures is apparently not known to this new school of religious entertainers. Their efforts to slip up on the reader and administer a quick shot of saving truth while his mind is on something else is not only futile, it is in fact, not too far short of being plain dishonest. The hope that they can convert a man while he is occupied with the doings of some imaginary hero reminds one of the story of the Catholic missionary who used to sneak up on sick people and children and splash a little holy water on them to guarantee their passage to the city of gold.

I believe that most responsible religious teachers will agree that any effort to teach spiritual truth through entertainment is at best futile and at worst positively injurious to the soul. But entertainment pays off, and the economic consideration is always a powerful one in deciding what shall and what shall not be offered to the public—even in the churches.

Deep spiritual experiences come only from much study, earnest prayer and long meditation. It is true that men by thinking cannot find God; it is also true that men cannot know God very well without a lot of reverent thinking. Religious movies, by appealing directly to the shallowest stratum of our minds, cannot but create bad mental habits which unfit the soul for the reception of genuine spiritual impressions.

Religious movies are mistakenly thought by some people to be blessed of the Lord because many come away from them with moist eyes. If this is a proof of God’s blessing, then we might as well go the whole way and assert that every show that brings tears is of God. Those who attend the theater know how often the audiences are moved to tears by the joys and sorrows of the highly paid entertainers who kiss and emote and murder and die for the purpose of exciting the spectators to a high pitch of emotional excitement. Men and women who are dedicated to sin and appointed to death may nevertheless weep in sympathy for the painted actors and be not one bit the better for it. The emotions have had a beautiful time, but the will is left untouched. The religious movie is sure to draw together a goodly number of persons who cannot distinguish the twinges of vicarious sympathy from the true operations of holy ghost.

3. The religious movie is a menace to true religion because it embodies acting, a violation of sincerity. (actors = hypocrites)

Without doubt the most precious thing any man possesses is his individual being; that by which he is himself and not someone else; that which cannot be finally voided by the man himself nor shared with another. Each one of us, however humble our place in the social scheme, is unique in creation. Each is a new whole man possessing his own separate “I-ness” which makes him forever something apart, an individual human being. It is this quality of uniqueness which permits a man to enjoy every reward of virtue and makes him responsible for every sin. It is his selfness, which will persist forever, and which distinguishes him from every creature which has been or ever will be created.

Because man is such a being as this, all moral teachers, and especially Jesus and His apostles, make sincerity to be basic in the good life. The word, as the New Testament uses it, refers to the practice of holding fine pottery up to the sun to test it for purity. In the white light of the sun all foreign substances were instantly exposed. So the test of sincerity is basic in human character. The sincere man is one in whom is found nothing foreign; he is all of one piece; he has preserved his individuality unviolated.

Sincerity for each man means staying in character with himself. Jesus' controversy with the Pharisees centered around their incurable habit of moral play acting. The Pharisee constantly pretended to be what he was not. He attempted to vacate his own "I-ness" and appear in that of another and better man. He assumed a false image and played it for effect. Jesus said he was a hypocrite.

It is more than an etymological accident that the word "hypocrite" comes from the stage. It means actor. With that instinct for fitness which usually marks word origins, it has been used to signify one who has violated his sincerity and is playing a false part. An actor is one who assumes a character other than his own and plays it for effect. The more fully he can become possessed by another personality the better he is as an actor.

Bacon has said something to the effect that there are some professions of such nature that the more skillfully a man (or woman) can work at them the worse man he is. That perfectly describes the profession of acting. Stepping out of our own character for any reason is always dangerous, and may be fatal to the soul (which it seems most actors have already sold for 'filthy lucre's sake'). However innocent his intentions, a man who assumes a false character has betrayed his own soul and has deeply injured something sacred within him.

No one who has been in the presence of the Most Holy One, who has felt how high is the solemn privilege of bearing His image, will ever again consent to play a part or to trifle with that most sacred thing, his own deep sincere heart. He will thereafter be constrained to be no one but himself, to preserve reverently the sincerity of his own soul.

In order to produce a religious movie someone must, for the time, disguise his individuality and simulate that of another. His actions must be judged fraudulent, and those who watch them with approval share in the fraud. To pretend to pray, to simulate godly sorrow, to play at worship before the camera for effect—how utterly shocking to the reverent heart. How can Christians who approve this gross pretense ever understand the value of sincerity as taught by our Lord? What will be the end of a generation of Christians fed on such a diet of deception disguised as the faith of our fathers?

The plea that all this must be good because it is done for the glory of God is a gossamer-thin bit of rationalizing which should not fool anyone above the mental age of six. Such an argument parallels the evil rule of expediency which holds the end is everything, and sanctifies the means, however evil, if only the end be commendable. The wise student of history will recognize this immoral doctrine. The Spirit-led Church will have no part of it.

It is not uncommon to find around the theater human flotsam and jetsam washed up by the years, men and women who have played false parts so long that the power to be sincere has forever gone from them. They are doomed to everlasting duplicity. Every act of their lives is faked, every smile is false, every tone of their voice is artificial. The curse does not come causeless. It is not by chance that the actor's profession has been notoriously dissolute. Hollywood and Broadway are two sources of corruption which may yet turn America into a Sodom and lay her glory in the dust.

The profession of acting did not originate with the Hebrews. It is not a part of the divine pattern. The Bible mentions it, but never approves it. Drama, as it has come down to us, had its rise in Greece. It was originally a part of the worship of the god Dionysus and was carried on with drunken revelry.

The Miracle Plays of medieval times have been brought forward to justify the modern religious movie. That is an unfortunate weapon to choose for the defense of the movie, for it will surely harm the man who uses it more than any argument I could think of just offhand.

The Miracle Plays had their big run in the Middle Ages. They were dramatic performances with religious themes staged for the entertainment of the populace. At their best they were misguided efforts to teach spiritual truths by dramatic representation; at their worst they were shockingly irreverent and thoroughly reprehensible. In some of them the Eternal God was portrayed as an old man dressed in white with a gilt wig! To furnish low comedy, the devil himself was introduced on the stage and allowed to cavort for the amusement of the spectators. Bible themes were used, as in the modern movie, but this did not save the whole thing from becoming so corrupt that the Roman Church had finally to prohibit its priests from having any further part in it. (Today, we still have the yearly Oberammergau Passion Play in Germany).

Those who would appeal for precedent to the Miracle Plays have certainly overlooked some important facts. For instance, the vogue of the Miracle Play coincided exactly with the most dismally corrupt period the Church has ever known. When the Church emerged at last from its long moral night these plays lost popularity and finally passed away. And be it remembered, the instrument God used to bring the Church out of the darkness was not drama; it was the biblical one of spirit-baptized preaching. Serious-minded men thundered the truth and the people turned to God.

Indeed, history will show that no spiritual advance, no revival, no upsurge of spiritual life has ever been associated with acting in any form. The holy spirit never honors pretense.

Can it be that the historic pattern is being repeated? That the appearance of the religious movie is symptomatic of the low state of spiritual health we are in today? I fear so. Only the absence of holy spirit from the pulpit and lack of true discernment on the part of professing Christians can account for the spread of religious drama among so-called evangelical churches. A spirit-filled church could not tolerate it.

4. They who present the gospel movie owe it to the public to give biblical authority for their act: and this they have not done.

The Church, as long as it is following the Lord, goes along in Bible ways and can give a scriptural reason for its conduct. Its members meet at stated times to pray together: This has biblical authority back of it. They gather to hear the Word of God expounded: this goes back in almost unbroken continuity to Moses. They sing Psalms, hymns and spiritual songs: as they are commanded by the apostle. They visit the sick and relieve the sufferings of the poor: for this they have both precept and example in Holy Writ.

They lay up their gifts and bring them at stated times to the church or chapel to be used in the Lord's work: this also follows the scriptural pattern. They teach and train and instruct; they appoint teachers and pastors and missionaries and send them out to do the work for which the spirit has gifted them: all this has plain scriptural authority behind it. They baptize, then break bread and witness to the lost; they cling together through thick and thin; they bear each other's burdens and share each other's sorrows: this is as it should be, and for all this there is full authority.

ARE YOU DOING THE MOST WITH WHAT YOU HAVE?

by Dan Dowd

Are you always thinking your life would be better if only you had this or that? Perhaps you need to look closer at what you have and make sure you're making the most of it first!

It's a natural human trait to look for something better in life. Many people seek to be healthier, more attractive, wealthier, more popular, more influential, more talented, smarter—the list goes on. The grass is always greener somewhere else.

Russell Conwell was a Protestant minister and motivational speaker over a century ago who founded Temple University in Philadelphia. He became noted for one speech in particular called "Acres of Diamonds," which has much to teach us in terms of appreciating and making use of what we have.

There are variations of Conwell's story, but the basics concern a farmer who desired to become rich and decided to hunt for diamonds. The farmer sells his land and begins travelling in search of areas that would be diamond rich. Sadly, after decades of fruitless searching, and having exhausted all his money, the former farmer drowns himself in a river.

Meanwhile, the new owner of his farm came across strange-looking stones in his fields. So unusual were they that he kept one on his fireplace mantel. A friend visited one day and saw the stone there, recognizing it for what it was—a huge uncut diamond. The new farmer was encouraged to collect these "stones" and sell them—which he did, becoming fabulously wealthy.

The lesson: The original farmer never bothered to look on his own land for the wealth he was seeking. We should ask, then: Do we make the most of what we have first, or do we think, "If I only had this or that, my life would be better"?

The apostle Paul cautions us to be content with what God has already given us: "Not that I speak in regard to need, for I have learned in whatever state I am, to be content" (Phil. 4:11).

Contentment doesn't only mean to make do; it can also mean to make use of what we have. What talents do we have that we can build on? It can be easy to ask God for something we think we need, but have we done the most with what He has already given us?

In the well-known parable of the talents, Jesus the Christ reprimands the one who squandered his talent because he didn't value even the little he had been given (Matthew 25:14-30). Likewise, the farmer in Conwell's story didn't think he had anything to start with, and he missed the treasure right under his nose.

Jesus stated, "Then the King will say to those on His right hand, 'Come, you blessed of My Father, inherit the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world'" (34).

The diamonds were just temporary wealth, like many of the useful ephemeral things we value in this life—cars, vacations, tablets, smartphones, computers, holidays, etc. We have a greater treasure accessible through the pages of God's Word and through the calling by which God has reserved for us His Kingdom.

Are you ready to acknowledge that calling? What will you do now to make the most of what you've already been given?

AND IT RAINED ON THEIR PARTY

by Adam de Witt

When Saul was crowned on the day of wheat harvest, it was a sign from God that he rained on his party, and ruining the wheat harvest.

When Mandela was being hailed as being a near-Jesus status by world leaders in ZA, God made sure it rained again, it rained on their party. This was a big event, all planned and stage managed. Mandela was long dead but the pretence of when he died was important, to have him buried one day before the most holy day for whites in South Africa, the Day of the Covenant, made at Blood River on 1-Dec-1838, when the heathens gave up fighting, bowing down to white rule, the true birth of South Africa. This was the day God saved the Whites from the blacks and made South Africa a White land for Whites. To wait to bury the black saviour or 'black-christ' was the system's way of boasting that not only is the white Jesus of the Whites dead, but also his body-folk, his burgesses, the Whites.

The boasts were lofty and long-winded of how great the greatest leader the world has seen for the last hundred years, yet God showed what he thought of this by having it rain on their party, showing it was a Pentecost type, at least a counterfeit one of the Beast of the Earth. The memorial was also a celebration of a release, a Jubilee, from white rule—a fake Jubilee as a true Jubilee is to set God's folk free. And just to help show us this was a counterfeit Pentecost experience, we need first to see what the living wonder was on the day of Pentecost 33 AD, so that we can liken that to what happened at Mandela's burial tribute day. That great wonder (miracle in French) of 33 AD was that everyone had ears to hear the words spoken that day during the lofty tributes for the 'black-messiah.'

The system wanted even the deaf to hear the words spoken so the Beast of the Earth system had the words translated for the deaf, by a translator so all could hear with hand signals—a second wonder? Well, the fakery was full—the translator turned out to be a 'nutter' who did not know how to make the hand signals. He stood by Zuma, Obama, a rabbi and others, and 'translated' their words into hand signals—which he made up. The deaf saw but remained deaf! The whole thing was mocked by God—the world could not help but laugh at the charade.

Now the Saul types are cast out, it took Esau to do it. The David type (King Jesus) is about to be acknowledged as being on the throne all along and having used the Saul types to prove to the world, that they were UNABLE to bring forth the fruit of the Kingdom. All Saul type feasts too will go, that includes Xmas. At last all Saksos, not only the Barley-type Saksos, but also thrashed wheat and crushed grapes too, will know that King Jesus has been thrashing them into yielding up their self-hood, and crushing the rest to give up the same.

The Handover of Freedom was Marked with a Fake Peace Agreement.

The Edom takeover with 'freedom' for all heathens from whites, with Edom being the game-changer and master of it all was marked with a freedom from strife for the Edomites too. The 'freedom' was or course fake as any Palestinian can testify to. The Jews pumped huge funds into destroying white apartheid whilst building their own apartheid in Palestine. Somehow they believed that they were able to pull the wool over everyone's eyes, blinding them all to truth. The Apartheid struggles they funded against the 7 white colonies, was running side by side with another struggle against oppression—against Jewish oppression in Palestine. The struggle was ongoing during the whole time as of 1948 but reached a climax with the 'uprising' as of December 1987, it ended with the signing of the Oslo Accords in September 1993. Thus as far as the world was concerned, the Beast system had won and the way to peace for Edom was kick-started. The Oslo Accords created the Palestinian Authority, whose functions are the limited self-rule over part of the Occupied Palestinian Territories (sort of Tribal Homeland determined by the Jews for ethnically-cleansed Palestinians) while the PLO would be Israeli's partner in permanent status negotiations about the remaining issues. The Jews had created a replica of the Rhodesia and Apartheid South Africa that they fought so hard to destroy.

Yet Jewish double standards are seen by God and would see to the fall of the Jewish state. All over the West that they took control of, they cried, "freedom from oppression," yet in their self-styled Promised Land oppression was a daily happening for those who the Jews drove out. During the uprising against the unrighteous treatment meted out by the Jews since 1948, the Jewish state deployed 80,000 soldiers to put down the uprising, and adopted a policy of "breaking Palestinians' bones" and using live ammunition against civilians. Over the first two years, according to Save the Children, some 7% of all Palestinians under the age of 18 years suffered wounds from shootings, beatings or tear gas. The peace the Jews promised never happened setting the stage for the Second Intifada which started in September 2000, when Ariel Sharon made a visit to the Temple Mount, seen by Palestinians as highly provocative; and Palestinian demonstrators, throwing stones at police, were dispersed by the Israeli army with military force, using deadly ammunition. On 28 September, Sharon, went onto the Temple Mount, together with over 1000 security guards. He stated on that day, "the Temple Mount is in our hands and will remain in our hands. It is the holiest site in Judaism and it is the right of every Jew to visit the Temple Mount," (even though the ruins there are not even of Solomon's temple, but that of a ROMAN stronghold! A little known fact). At the time I was in Holland and the day before, I asked for the keys to climb the tower of a church along one of the busiest water ways in the Netherlands. Once at the top I blew the ram's horn - I had to make the new month and prayed for OUR release. The next day the Second Intifada began—well may the Arabs cry that their God is Great—but well indeed can we cheer OUR FATHER is Great!

Lastly—More on the Fake Jubilee.

If the Pentecost Age has ended in 1994, then why are we not in the Booths age, and if not in the Booths age—where are we? The reason why we never seemed to have seen much change was because the change was played down by the establishment, and the reason why they played it down is because it had failed to declare a true Jubilee, to set us free, and to restore the rule to Jesus the Christ on earth.

They left us in captivity, but claimed that the whole world was set free when the last form of apartheid was killed, and we went from being in a Pentecost realm to a realm run by Edom which pretended to offer freedom for all, but it really meant death to Saksos. Let me put it this way, we are in a sort of death warmed up realm that to Saksos looks like business as usual, but 'Beast-fake freedom' looks like a lengthening of the Pentecost Age, a sort of in Egypt by pretence—yet we are promised to be out of Egypt, yet fully in it.

It all has to do with God having a Will, and a Plan (see God's Sovereignty, Man's Authority, by Stephen Jones, #085 @ sug don $10.00) —and the two do not always mean the same thing, but they always lead to the will of God (in the end). The freedom proclaimed was freedom for the heathen from us, from whites; and more to the point of white rule and the law of Pentecost Christianity which they deemed as 'an oppression.' Today the heathen can say what they like to us, call us racists and expect us to shrivel away in fear of that term. Yet there is no term that we can now throw at them lest we be punished. So they are now free fully, worldwide—from us. That is why they treated Mandela as a messiah. They did not want to admit that they killed, what they saw as Christendom, lest church goers be enraged. So they kept us in captivity, but called it freedom—it was a fake Jubilee.

Sometime after that I felt the calling to be part of the Jubilee Prayer campaign which began on Nov. 21-29, 1993.

The law teaches that when we sin (break the laws of God) that the sin is reckoned as debt. The Bible teaches that we are to forgive 7 times 70 or 490 times. This stands for a 'kindness' or 'grace' period, but then the debts are looked at. If then there is no repentance and also no means to repay the debt, then we are sold for our sins. This works that way under the law of restitution. Under that law, if the thief steals and is caught with the goods, he is to give back the goods, plus the same again—i.e. double restitution. If the good are broken or sold then he must pay back four-fold, and if the goods were part of the victim's business and lost in the theft, then the thief must pay back five-fold.

In Revelation 18:6 we read, "Pay her back as she herself has paid back others, and repay her double for her deeds; mix a double portion for her in the cup she mixed." You can search the internet for the meaning of this in the commentaries made by the church-trained ones, and not one understands the reason for the behest to do double to Babylon. They simply believe it a term of overstressing the need to pay her back; but that is not the case, as God is a Law Giver of Law. So this statement has to do with Law. Because the church-trained-ones have done away with God's Law, they do not know the way it works in matters of theft, and therefore do not see that this verse 6 is laced with law issues to do with theft.

To see how this works on a national sin level, we get the best example from our time in Egypt. We were sold into Egyptian bondage for our sins. But when the sins were paid in full, the master for who we worked our debt off for, must let us go free. If we want to carry on serving the master, then he must no longer take some of our pay away from our wages to cover the cost of the debt note as that has been cleared. When we asked to be free, he can no longer hold us, to keep making income from us, if he does, he is then stealing from our toil and then he becomes guilty of robbing us, making him the thief.

So when Moses went to the Pharaoh and said, Let my people go so that we can serve our God; i.e. our Master (instead of Pharaoh), he said that it was only right and said that they could go.

Then we are told that OUR God "hardened his heart" so that he changed his mind. He then would not let us go free and made us carry on working for him as if we had not paid off our debt. This made the Pharaoh become a thief. Now the Pharaoh's debts were being tallied by OUR Master for robbing us. The longer he held us, the higher the debt. A search of the following verses on the net shows once again just how ignorant the church-trained-ones are in the knowledge of the law, and they do not see God's instruction to plunder as plunder; but instead they make apologies for the plunder and call it 'giving.' That is to say, the Egyptians freely gave all the stuff to Israel.

Exodus 3:21-22, "I will grant this people favour in the sight of the Egyptians; and it shall be that when you go, you will not go empty-handed. But every woman shall ask of her neighbour and the woman who lives in her house, things of silver and things of gold, and clothing; and you will put them on your sons and daughters. Thus you will plunder the Egyptians." Then in Exodus 12:35-36 we read: "The children of Israel had done according to the word of Moses and asked the Egyptians for silver and gold jewelry and for clothing. And the Lord gave the people such favour in the Egyptians sight that they gave them what they asked. In this way they plundered the Egyptians."

The apologists of the church teachers will try and let us look at the words, the 'Egyptians gave' and 'were asked' and so it was not truly plunder — but it was. However, it was not plundering as in unrighteous theft; it was plunder as in spoil. Indeed, some translations use the word, spoil, a term used as in war-booty. We can see that God hardened the Pharaoh's heart to make sure that the Pharaoh became a thief and thus robbed OUR forebears in Egypt.

The Law demands a thief pay back double the worth, or value (if the thief still had the item he stole, he is to return it with an equivalent; if he stole a $100, he is to give back the $100 plus another $100. [Rushdoony's Institutes of Biblical Law] not the original plus double). Seeing that the Egyptians had the goods gained by theft and had not sold these through or had lost such, they only had to give these in worth of the theft plus the same worth again on top of it. They had to give this when asked—and they were asked and they gave. After all the things the Egyptians went through at the hands of OUR God, they learned that only OUR God is the AL-MIGHTY ONE.

Now in this day/age we find ourselves in the same 'boat,' namely that the Edomites who run Babylon will not let us go. A senator as stated above has already shouted, Let my People go! But Babel said nothing, she kept us in slavery long after 1994. Edom's Babel pretends that she does not have to let us go and she knows it. We see this in Ezekiel 35:12, "Then you will know that I, the LORD, heard all the insults that you spoke about the mountains (nations) of Israel. You said, 'They have been deserted and handed over to us to use up.'"

For those who still think that the State of Israeli is Biblical Israel, then this one verse alone disproves that, as it states MOUNTAINS or bergs of Israel. A berg is a large nation, a hill is a small one, and a dale is one sunken into a depression. This verse therefore speaks of LARGE and many lands of Israel in the end time. The Jewish state is neither many lands, or a berg of a land, at best it is a hill, or maybe just a knoll. The verse also shows that the Edomites KNOW that we the Saksos have been sold to them for OUR sins. But they also know that the sin is paid for, but they like to keep us down.

Again, the church-trained-ones have no clue as to what this means. This can be seen in their commentaries.

In any case, the point with this verse is that the Edomites have vanished into a tripe that today is called the 'Jews' and they hold our folk in their grips "to use us up." If the Jews are Israelites, who is using them up? No one! The richest folk on earth are the banksters and multinationals, and the media moguls, and these are so rich, many earning in one hour what we need to work a whole year for. They never pay tax or very little; whereas we pay and pay and pay. All the TV and radio stations, the media, are nearly all Jews—as are the top political players (and/or), their advisors. No one is using them up. Yet they are sucking us dry, they are using us up. It is WE who are being used up and it is they who think that we have been given to them to eat up.

The church-trained-ones do not see the link between the Israelites given to the Jews to use up as a means of restitution. Nor do they know who the Israelites are, and as is typical of the churches, they believe that the Jews are the Israelites. They do not know that in this verse the Edomites are the Jews as they do not know their history. Despite the facts around us which I have just highlighted, they still cannot identify rightly who the Jews are and who the Israelites are; yet the facts stare us all in the face every day. The 99%-ers in the 'Occupy Wall Street' movement are not rich Jews, nor are they the ones using up the Jews—somehow the churches have very muddy glasses with which they see the world!

Anyhow, the point is that we see that the Edomites who call themselves Jews (but are not...Israelites) believe they are right in their (own) eyes. However, Ezekiel 35:5 tells us that our lawlessness has ended and they still will not set us free. Of course we are still lawless, but out sins have been paid in full. Yet Edom/Jewry will not let us go. "Because thou (Edomites) hast a perpetual hatred, and hast shed the blood of the children of Israel (Isaac-sons, the Sakka, the Saksons) by the force of the sword in the time of their calamity, in the time that their iniquity had an end:" I hope you can see it—on the time that their (that is, our) iniquity had an end.

Just to show how evil the new Bible translations are, the International Standard version states, "Because of your undying hatred, you kept on making the Israelis experience abuse during the time of their calamity, even when they were in their final stages of punishment."—that translation uses the word Israelis—not Israelites! The Israelis are the Jews of post-1948 Palestine. There never was a people called Israelis before that time—EVER! So seeing that it has to do with post 1948—how can it be then that the Israelis are supposedly being plundered, when it is our taxes that are being plundered to prop up the Jewish state, and with that the Israelis oppress the Palestinians. Take away the USA funding from plundered USA Saksons alone, and the Israeli state would cave in overnight. And the USA funding of the Israeli is a large reason for the never-ending USA debt. So who is using who?

That same chapter of Ezekiel 35 also tells us that these Edomites took the lands where the Lord once was, that being, the Land of Judea and the Land of Israel—no one has ever claimed these lands as the Jews have. This alone should tell us that the Edomites are Jews; and Revelation tells us that those who call themselves Jews are not—not what? Not what they say they are, namely, 'of Judah' let alone of Israel. That same chapter then tells us that God will fordo (destroy) their land and THEN the true Israelites (the blind Saksons) will know who they are. I believe that this day is swiftly coming. Those of the churches will be shocked that God will not have saved the Jews that they so worship.

From all this we see that Edom, who runs Babel, believes that we are not to be set free and is holding us captive LONG after we were to be set free.

It has to be that way so that we can plunder Babel when she falls; otherwise we'd go into the Promised Land as paupers and penniless. We read in the OT that when OUR forebears were on their way to the Promised Land that some tribes on route, they were not to smite; but they had to buy water and food from them. Our forebears would not have been able to do this, had they been penniless.

If we were set free in 1994, we would have been poor. Most Saksons have been battling for a crust. Many Saksons think they are doing well, but in truth they believe a lie. Their homes are owned by banksters and their new cars too, their land under their feet is leased as our title deeds are not outright ownership (as proven by Council Rates). Our goods we buy need replacing almost every year [our juicer which we bought in Nov. 2012 has gone back for a new motor 3 times - we are now on the fourth motor, but it has a lifetime guarantee, HR], our taxes take up 50% of our earnings and that does not include all the taxes on all the goods and services we need. For many they are lucky, if at the end of a week, they have $10 left in their pockets. Our food is plenteous but it kills us. Good food is less than 10% of the food supply (few will even understand this).

To start a new economy, we need funds and there are plenty of funds for the taking—in the hands of Babylon—and God tells us to take these when the time is right. So, dear kinsfolk, do not give up hope, the captivity is lengthened to help us. Our Father is Great to save. Our King rules with righteousness—always. — AdeW.

▲ LESSON IN FUTILITY

by Lee Duigon

Why is the mainstream pro-family movement so completely ineffective in the culture war? That it is ineffective, there can be no doubt. Just look at what's been happening to our culture.

As a perfect illustration of futility, see the column by Rebecca Hagelin from the August 28, 2013, edition of townhall.com, "Culture Challenge of the Week: Public School Culture." For utter cluelessness, and as a fool-proof recipe for ineffectuality, this one beats 'em all.

Ms. Hagelin admits that "the social and moral climate within our schools has turned an ugly corner, and poses sharp new challenges for children who are religious believers. .... Our public schools are a prime battleground; our children are in harm's way. It's up to us to make sure that our children do not become the 'collateral damage' from the left's relentless strike against marriage and heterosexuality." In brief, public school "educators" are going all-out to indoctrinate children into homosexuality. Ms. Hagelin is not bashful about recognizing that as the big problem which "public school culture." We agree: it is.

It's only when she suggests what ought to be done about the problem that she comes out with pure, jaw-dropping tomfoolery.

First, she advises, parents should warn their children what to expect in the classroom by way of public school's promotion of aberrant sexuality. How will she answer if a child asks, "Gee, Rebecca—if it's so bad, why are you sending us there in the first place?" Good question, no answer.

Next, she says, "Talk to your principal and your child's teachers about your concerns ... Insist that they .... respect your child's religious freedom to uphold marriage as between a man and a woman. Let them know you are confident that they will preserve a respectful climate in the classroom ..." Then I guess you ought to step back, because they'll be rolling all over the floor, laughing.

In any conflict, it's disastrous to misunderstand the nature of the enemy. Ms. Hagelin misunderstands in neon letters ten feet high. She thinks she's dealing with nice, rational persons who play by the rules and respect others' points of view. She could not be more hopelessly, totally wrong. Can she honestly believe these unionized "educators," in their lust to debauch and de-Christianize the culture, will respect her views on marriage and the family? They hate her views! Indeed, they couldn't be more blunt about it. There is no excuse for not knowing how wildly pro-homosexual, how fervently anti-family, these people are.

Any attempt to have such a discussion would likely find the teacher or principal staring at the parent as if she had earwigs crawling out her nose.

Ms. Hagelin then advises, "Offer to help educate teachers, students, and staff about the religious and speech rights of all students."

So you, the despised and lowly parent, are going to "educate" the expert educators? While you're at it, why not just ask for a kick in the pants? Believe me, you wouldn't want to hear what they say about you in the faculty lounge after you go home. Really, Rebecca—haven't you read any of those teacher union papers on homeschooling? Do you really not know what they think of parents?

If there is any worse advice out there to deal with any problem, I don't want to hear it.

The only way to protect your children from "public school culture" is not to put them in the public schools. If you think you can protect them from gender coaches, King and King, and subtler messages like "The Bible is hate speech" and "Communism has a lot of good ideas" by having a nice, civil chin-wag with a teacher or a principal who's going to think you're just another homophobic Christian moron—well, you really need to think again. But this is precisely the kind of fruitless drivel regularly indulged in by the pro-family movement. They dive for minnows in a pool full of sharks. They babble away about nine-year-olds being "salt and light" in schools run by adult immoralists. Somehow it makes them feel righteous.

But the mal-education of their own children seems a high price to pay for a personal sense of righteousness. Why send Christian children to be "educated" by persons who loathe Christianity?

Let's hear the excuses.

THE TITHE TESTS GOD

Tithing is one of the Laws of God about which a great deal of argument is made. The word TITHE means TENTH. It is one tenth of one's produce, wages, or income that is given to the Lord. It can be looked upon as rent, paid to the Lord, for we must remember that all belongs to Him. He has said .... for the land is mine." Leviticus 25:23. To not do so, is stealing from God, like tenants who squat without paying rent.

Another important point to remember is that the Tithe we pay is also in the nature of 'insurance.' If it is honourably paid, the Lord is on His honour to see that we have enough for our needs. It is the only thing about which we are told to 'prove,' or test Him. In Malachi 3:10 we read, "Bring ye all the tithes into the storehouse, that there may be meat in mine house, and prove me now herewith, saith the Lord of Hosts, if I will not open you the windows of heaven, and pour you out a blessing, that there shall not be room enough to receive it."

Those who make a habit of paying their tithe find they have no lack, that what is left goes further, and that they also receive some type of blessing. They have a satisfied feeling of having done the Lord's will.

FRUITS OF DISORDER

contributed by an 'Acres of Diamonds' man.

I pray this will be the first article in a series of messages on God's order. How and why God demands order, and how and why we are to carry out that demand.

First let's examine the fruits of disorder. too many people think that they can do as they please, sin as they please, act as they please. Then they'll say, "LORD, forgive me," and all will be great, all will be healed and there will be no consequences. But that simply is not Biblical in any fashion. Your repentance may wash away your sins so that you are as white as snow when you stand before the LORD in judgment, but that does not erase the fruit of the sin.

An example would be a person that has spent years abusing drugs, abusing their body with chemicals that destroyed their health, their teeth, their liver, their heart and so on. Their repentance (if it is genuine) brings them into a covenant with God and their sins are forgotten as far as the east is from the west. But, their rotten fruit, from their years of bodily abuse, may be that of ill health. Yes, God can heal. God can restore. God can strengthen them, and they may be able to regain the health that was lost. But that is still dealing with the rotten fruit that was produced from the sins. Depending on the rottenness of the fruit, it may take months or years to regain that health.

Consider a mother or father that both exhibit rebellion all of their lives before the children. A mother that does not submit but rather argues and fights against her husband, or a man that does not take his seat of authority as head of the home, will affect the children throughout their lives and possibly for generations. Why? Because the children have not witnessed a mother and father in and under authority, and it sets a bad example for them and that is who they will be in their lives. With the LORD, they can overcome it, but how much better would their fruit be if they didn't have to learn to overcome the rotten fruit from their parents' rebellion.

Basically the person has to replant and produce good fruit to replace the rotten fruit. How many years of the possibility of good fruit was wasted because the first vineyard was neglected? That replanting means tearing out old vines that could have produced good fruit to begin with. But still the rotten fruit exists, and may exist for years or even generations.

The perfect example is that of King David. Oh what a man of God. Blessed by God abundantly, but in one night he plowed a vineyard with Bathsheba that would produce rotten fruit for generations. What made matters worse was that he continued to plant it with lies, murder and deceit after the initial plowing.

“And David sent and inquired after the woman. And one said, Is not this Bathsheba, the daughter of Eliam, the wife of Uriah the Hittite? And David sent messengers, and took her; and she came unto him, and he lay with her (for she was purified from her uncleanness); and she returned unto her house. And the woman conceived; and she sent and told david, and said, I am with child.” (2 Samuel 11:3-5, ASV)

This was no small matter of sin on David’s part. If you read the rest of the story you’ll see that Uriah was a valiant man, and David tried to plant the seed of deception that the child belonged to Uriah by having Uriah lay with his own wife. When he wouldn’t, David planted more rotten fruit by arranging for Uriah’s death.

“And it came to pass in the morning, that David wrote a letter to Joab, and sent it by the hand of Uriah. And he wrote in the letter, saying, Set ye Uriah in the forefront of the hottest battle, and retire ye from him, that he may be smitten, and die.” (2 Samuel 11:14-15, ASV)

What happened then? Uriah died by David’s hand. He was murdered.

“And Jehovah sent Nathan unto David. And he came unto him, and, and said unto him, There were two men in one city; the one rich and the other poor. The rich man had exceeding many flocks and herds; but the poor man had nothing, save one little ewe lamb, which he had bought and nourished up: and it grew up together with him, and with his children; it did eat of his own morsel, and drank of his own cup, and lay in his bosom, and was unto him as a daughter. And there came a traveller unto the rich man, and he spared to take of his own flock and of his own herd, to dress for the wayfaring man that was come unto him, but took the poor man’s lamb, and dressed it for the man that was come to him. And David’s anger was greatly kindled against the man; and he said to Nathan, As Jehovah liveth, the man that hath done this is worthy to die: and he shall restore the lamb fourfold, because he did this thing, and because he had no pity. And Nathan said to David, Thou art the man. Thus saith Jehovah, the God of Israel, I anointed thee king over Israel, and I delivered thee out of the hand of Saul; and I gave thee thy master’s house, and thy master’s wives into thy bosom, and gave thee the house of Israel and of Judah; and if that had been too little, I would have added unto thee such and such things.” (2 Samuel 12:1-8 ASV).

Note: David was in order under Saul, his master Saul wasn’t. David was honored because of his order.

“... Wherefore hast thou despised the word of Jehovah, to do that which is evil in his sight? thou hast smitten Uriah the Hittite with the sword, and hast taken his wife to be thy wife, and hast slain him with the sword of the children of Ammon. Now therefore the sword shall never depart from thy house, because thou hast despised me, and hast taken the wife of Uriah the Hittite to be thy wife. Thus saith Jehovah, Behold, I will raise up evil against thee out of thine own house; and I will take thy wives before thine eyes, and give them unto thy neighbour; and he shall lie with thy wives in the sight of this sun. For thou didst it secretly: but I will do this thing before all Israel, and before the sun. And David said unto Nathan, I have sinned against Jehovah. And Nathan said unto David, Jehovah also hath put away thy sin; thou shalt not die. Howbeit, because by this deed thou hast given great occasion to the enemies of Jehovah to blaspheme, the child also that is born unto thee shall surely die.” (2 Samuel 12:9-14 ASV).

Notice that David repented and was forgiven, but what was the fruit of his disobedience to God’s Word? David’s sins were washed white as snow, but there was still a price to pay.

1. The sword would never depart from his house. Read how David’s children were at war with each other and with David. Read how David’s son violated his daughter.

2. He would raise up evil against David from his own family.

3. His wives would be given to another.

4. God would humiliate David publicly.

The child produced by David and Bathsheba would die.

It will be said now of David for all of eternity that he did that which was right in the eyes of Jehovah, except for the matter of Uriah the Hittite.

“Because David did that which was right in the eyes of Jehovah, and turned not aside from anything that he commanded him all the days of his life, save only in the matter of Uriah the Hittite.” (1 Kings 15:5 ASV).

What pain, what sins, what evil was laid upon the house of one of the mightiest men of God in the Bible! How people suffered, how the kingdom suffered, how his family suffered. Why? Because David was out of order, God’s order. David disobeyed. He despised the word of Jehovah.

Wherefore hast thou despised the word of Jehovah, to do that which is evil in his sight? ... (2 Samuel 12:9 ASV).

David’s repentance was mighty. His prayers were profound. His weeping was genuine. His fasting was from the heart. He sacrificed his comfort by laying upon the dirt rather than a bed. For seven days he cried before the LORD with the sincerity of the mighty Psalmist that he was. How elegant those prayers must have been. How all his servants around him must have said of David how he prayed and how the LORD would hear and answer such beautiful prayers. But what happened? The child died. Oh, what rotten fruit that was.

And Nathan departed unto his house. And Jehovah struck the child that Uriah’s wife bare unto David, and it was very sick. David therefore besought God for the child; and David fasted, and went in, and lay all night upon the earth. And the elders of his house arose, and stood beside him, to raise him up from the earth; but he would not, neither did he eat bread with them. And it came to pass on the seventh day, that the child died...  (2 Samuel 12:15-18 ASV)

What would have been the fruit if David would have stayed in order? God would have given him more. More wives if that’s what he needed. But no, David stepped out of order and produced the fruits of disorder.

And I gave thee thy master’s house, and thy master’s wives into thy bosom, and gave thee the house of Israel and of Judah; and if that had been too little, I would have added unto thee such and such things. (2 Samuel 12:8 ASV - emphasis added)

#CI-932 @ sug don $7

When we are in order, God wants to give to us everything. But when we are out of order, God will punish us for that sin, even if it takes generations of punishment to pay for that sin.

I'm not talking about you standing before the LORD on Judgment Day. I'm talking about you standing before the mirror and seeing the rotten fruit in your life because you chose to despise the Word of God.

But consider this. You may still be reaping rotten fruit on the Judgment Day. How? Will your crown be smaller? Will your treasures be less? If only you had been in order. If only you had obeyed this or that. What is your "if only"?

How have you despised the Word of God? Have you been obedient to God's order? Have you been a faithful child to your parents? Have you been a faithful and obedient wife to your husband? Have you been an obedient and faithful man of God? Have you been faithful to the ministry that God has set you under? Have you been faithful in that place that God has put you, whether as a servant or as a leader?

That place is the place where you are the most effective for the Kingdom. That is your place of power. Whether a mother, father or a organist or janitor at a church, that is your place to shine for the Kingdom of God. That's where you will make the most difference.

I intend, in a future teaching, to examine God's order. Why it's important and how you, by being in order, are where God can use you, and that by being out of order you endanger all those around you and hinder those that are closest to you, both now and possibly for generations to come.

But today is the day that YOU should seek God's order in your life. Pray for these teachings that they be led by holy spirit and that my hand will be blessed to share what God has laid upon my heart.

Seek God and His order. Don't feel or be condemned because you have produced rotten fruit, but rather seek the LORD Jesus Christ. He is gracious. Remember, your sins are as white as snow and God remembers them no more. He can heal, He can restore.

Now, today, this moment, with the Blood of Jesus the Christ, you can replant, you can restore, you can change how you will be defined from this moment forward. Yes, there may be things that you are sorry for from your past. There may be things that will still be producing rotten fruit long after you are dead and gone because of your past actions. But, how much more spoiled fruit are you willing to produce and have displayed in your life?

It can be stopped today with true repentance, and seeking the LORD Jesus with all your heart. Then the LORD Jesus will help in cleaning up your vineyards and orchards of the past.

Consider this. Will your eternity, as King David's is, be marred with the phrase that you did all that was right in the sight of Jehovah, save only _____? (fill in the blank where you are out of order). Anything that you can put in that blank can be overcome with the Blood of our LORD Jesus the Christ.

'I HAVE NOTHING TO LIVE FOR'

More than three quarters if a million young people in the United Kingdom feel they "have nothing to love for," according to a YouGov poll for the Prince's Trust Macquarie Youth Index published January 1.

The study, based on interviews with 2,161 people ages 16 to 25, also shows that more than one in four British youth have considered committing suicide. And almost one in five have self-harmed.

Why do so many young people in the affluent UK believe life is not worth living? Why have over 2 million of them thought seriously about taking their own life? Why have over 1.5 million deliberately harmed their bodies by cutting their skin with blades and other methods?

Most analysts discussing the study blame long-term unemployment. This is a contributing factor, but the figures include significant percentages of job-holders, students and others. Unemployment exacerbates hopelessness and self-destructive tendencies, but it isn't the only cause.

Alongside unemployment, we could also point to the UK's failing school systems, its entertainment and music industries, pornography, drug pushers, violent video games and a host of other aspects of its lawless modern culture.

But the far bigger cause of the increasing hopelessness of youths originates in the home. Increasing numbers of parents in the UK are unstable and self-absorbed. They are often too mired in personal crises of their own to be active in the lives of their children. Many have bought the deception that permissiveness in child rearing is the paragon of parental love.

But what does the God who created mankind, and who designed us to reproduce and live in the structure of family say? "The one who spares his rod hates his child, but the one who loves his child is diligent in disciplining him" (Proverbs 13:24, Net Translation).

That proverb and hundreds of other biblical passages revealing how to build healthy families are largely ignored. Whether unqualified or unwilling, too many parents are not fulfilling their God-given responsibility to love, nurture, teach, lead, correct and discipline their children. In these vital areas, many parents have abandoned their children. The result is the millions of troubled youth revealed by the YouGov Poll.

A NEW YEAR, A NEW 40,000 LAWS

By the measure of signing new bills into law, America's Congress this past year was the most ineffective in American history, passing a meager 56 laws. Individual states, however, surged ahead with legislative ferocity. A mind-staggering 40,000 new state laws are coming into effect this year.

The thinking seems to be that every problem can be solved by making it illegal, and every positive action can be secured by making it legally mandatory.

The explosion of new laws recalls the effort that was made in 1982 to count the criminal laws on the books scattered among 50 titles and 23000 pages of federal law. The project took two years and in the end no one could say for sure how many criminal offences there were. A Justice Department official who oversaw the attempted tally said, "You will have died and [been] resurrected three times" before you could ever hope to count all the laws.

America is already overburdened with laws [as is Australia!] "There is no one in the United States over the age of 18 who can not be indicted for some federal crime," John Baker, a retired Louisiana State University law professor told the Wall Street Journal. "That is not an exaggeration."

But the problem is greater than just the sheer number of laws. Many of these laws promote practices that a great number of people consider immoral. In California, transgender students will be able to choose which restrooms to use and which sports teams to play on based on "gender identity" rather than physical anatomy. Also in California, children can now have more than two legal parents. Illinois legalized a same-sex "marriage" law that will come into effect later this year. Colorado became the first place in the world to allow the legal selling of marijuana.

What is the root cause driving all this legislation? Would you believe that it is the breaking of a higher law that supersedes every law ever written by man?

The truth is that all the evils in society today—evils that human governments try to curtail with laws of their own—are a result of breaking the perfect law of God—His spiritual law of love. When the Eternal God first created man and placed him on this earth, all was perfect harmony and beauty—and then, of necessity there is a great fundamental, inextinguishable spiritual law, to regulate man's relations with man, and man's relation to his Creator. This spiritual law might be called the law of love.

It is because of these broken laws that man is unable to produce peace, regardless of the political system or legal mechanism we use. America's countless laws have failed to bring real peace, and the 40,000 new laws won't bring us any closer to peace either.

Ultimately, it will take a totally different governmental and legal structure to bring peace—one founded on God's perfect law of love summed up in the Ten Commandments. Such a government is coming.

CONTEMPORARY SALVATION, EASY AND DECEPTIVE

by Ed Somerville

Since much of today's Baptist, Pentecostal, and Evangelical churches feel that their main mission on earth is to get people saved so they can go to heaven and not burn in an everlasting hell, I think it's time to take a closer look at both the methods and results of their efforts.

One term that is used most frequently today is, Accept Christ as your personal Savior, a term not mentioned in the Word of God. As much as I can find out about it, is that it was not used before the 20th century. That would mean that the Christians of two to four hundred years ago never went through the now popular ritual of accepting Christ as their personal Savior. This was at a time when they were grounded in the Word of God and knew at an early age from the prophets and the New Testament writers that He was the one promised not only to redeem (buy back) His people, but to save them. They accepted this as a fact. They were almost all the sons (and daughters) of God from an early age, and they knew it.

After Peter preached his sermon in Acts 2, they asked him What shall we do? He told them two things, Repent and be baptized for the remission of sins. These men were probably among the first to be converted to the new faith, replacing that of the Judeans.

Many of today's pastors preach sermons on Lordship, make Jesus the Lord of your life. This is not to say that there is anything wrong with it, but the Christians of yesteryear also believed in the Kingship of Jesus, which is missing in the churches of today. The battle-cry of the American Revolution was no king but Jesus. In one of our well-known Christmas carols are the words, Born is the king of Israel. How can any Christian believe that this refers to the people they are told are Israel (i.e. the Jews), when they boldly proclaimed in Luke 19:14, We will not have this man to reign over us; and in John 19:15, we have no king but Caesar. They never accepted Him as their king, and never will. It appears that at some future time Israel would not know their heritage or their miraculous history as Isaiah alludes to this very thing in 1:3, The ox knoweth his owner, and the ass his master's crib: but Israel doth not know, my people doth not consider. This could not possibly apply to the people called Jews today, as they erroneously, deceitfully and repeatedly claim they know who they are. It is our pastors who have been blinded in part until the fullness of the nations be come in. Romans 11:25 - a reference to Genesis 48:19.

For any honest Bible student that has not been programmed into the new religion of Judeo-Christianity, in reading the New Testament would have to admit that Jesus' obsession and His number one mission on earth was His Kingdom. His first recorded words uttered to the people were in Matthew 4:17, Repent for the Kingdom of heaven is at hand. In His model prayer, the Kingdom was mentioned twice, while there was no mention of salvation or going to heaven. Jesus spent His last forty days on earth with His disciples explaining things pertaining to the Kingdom. He did not tell them what methods to use to get people saved, or how to build large churches.

To promote the popular hermeneutics of today, much emphasis is put on John 1:11, He came unto His own, and His own received Him not. This is used to give the impression that His sheep would not follow Him, so he had to go to a non Israelite people. Jesus said in John 10:27, My sheep know my voice, and I know them, and they follow me. Israel is the only people on earth that were ever called His sheep. Did Jesus the Christ, the Alpha and Omega, who knew the end from the beginning, issue a statement He could not fulfill? Maybe they should read the next verse, John 1:12, But as many as received Him, to them gave he the power to become the sons of God, Even to them that believe on His name. The last part of that verse covers a lot of people who have been written off by the self-righteous Evangelicals of today.

Yes, His sheep, the Israelites in Judea in spite of being heavily influenced by the Jewish Pharisees like our people are today, did receive Him by the thousands as recorded in the Scriptures. No He did not fail to keep His promise, that His sheep only would hear His voice and follow Him. Our pastors are still blinded in part as written, as they still don't know who the sheep are who followed Him for the last two thousand years.

You would think, since Jesus' foremost ministry on earth was centered on His kingdom, it would be preached from hundreds of thousands of churches nationwide. But if you were to mention it to the average Christian today you would be met with a confused response, like you were in a cult or a Jehovah's Witness. Their minds have been deceived into thinking they are going to heaven when they die and they have no interest in His Kingdom or what He has planned for us. The enemies within our gates have their own plans to set up their own counterfeit kingdom on earth while the Christians are destroying themselves by helping them do it. They like the idea that the Christians have no interest in the kingdom of God, only a spiritual place off in the sky. The enemies of Jesus have been planning this for over two thousand years.

Years ago a pastor I knew, while doing a Bible study on the Kingdom, mentioned a sermon on heaven given by a radio preacher that he had heard the day before. Since there is no description of this intangible spiritual place in the sky found in the Bible, he had read the entire fifth chapter of Revelation as an attempt at making it appear as if it pertained to that mystical place they call heaven. In reading it, he went from verse nine to eleven, leaving out the tenth verse, which reads, And hast made is kings and priests: and we shall reign on the earth. There is nothing in the entire chapter that implies anything he was trying to accomplish. We were told thousands of years ago, way back in Numbers 6:27, And they shall put my name upon the Children of Israel: and I will bless them. That blessing is still pronounced in churches who don't know or believe they are Israelites

After the House of Israel was taken captive by the Assyrians because of their going after other gods, He said they would not be called His People any more, but Sons of the living God (Hosea 1:10). Who are the people who are called Sons of God? The same people who are being told You are Gentiles, and not Israelites, i.e. not My people.

Then in Acts 12:26, The disciples were called Christians first at Antioch. A disciple is one who studies the teaching of a master, believes the teacher, and spreads the teaching. Two hundred years ago, Christianity was a way of life, an ethic. They were able to govern themselves with the Bible as the final word. In the last half of the 19th century Christianity began its rapid change to turn the faith of our fathers into a religion. Many of the things taught by our pastors were never ordained by Jesus. He never mentioned anyone going to heaven when they died, nor is it ever mentioned in the prophets. Why didn't the writers of the New Testament ever mention when one died, He went to be with the Lord, or He's in heaven now?

The rapture theory was never mentioned by Him or the prophets. There is not enough Biblical evidence to even qualify it as a theory, much like Evolution. He never mentioned anyone burning in hell for eternity, as Paul confirmed it when he said the wages of sin is death, as that was the price paid for it. Jesus Christ the author and finisher of our faith, never said or even implied in any manner that the antichrist Jews were His chosen people, His sheep. He said just the opposite when He told them, You are of your father the devil [adversary] (John 8:44) meaning the descendants of Esau, the Edomites.

Instead of elaborating on what Jesus said about His Kingdom, they prefer to preach about things that never crossed His mind. It's no wonder why so many of today's Christians have such a negative attitude and so little regard for His Kingdom. John 1:1, In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God and the Word was God. Jesus was the Word of God manifested in the flesh. There are many today that call themselves New Testament Christians as well as others who have rejected His Laws and most of the wisdom contained in the prophets who told our past as well as our future, right up to the end of this age.

I think it's time that all these people that have Accepted Jesus as their personal Saviour, should seriously ask themselves, has Jesus accepted me. You cannot accept Jesus without accepting His Word, the Law and the Prophets; not just the parts that fit your interpretation of eschatology. because of all the convoluted doctrines they have accepted, along with most of the Law and the prophets they have rejected, would seem that they have compromised their salvation by going along with the new Judeo-Christian religion that has all but destroyed us. Had we followed His Laws on usury we would not be in debt 19 trillion dollars; and if we followed His Laws on warfare we would not be mired down in two wars over ten years, with no end in sight. The same is true for His other Laws.

Another term that has been made popular is, I'm a born-again Christian. It's almost unbelievable that they would have the audacity to use the verses in John 3 to imply that they must be bargain to go to heaven. If you take the time to read them, you can plainly see that Jesus was talking about the Kingdom of God, a literal place right here on earth, not a spiritual place in the heavens.

The New Testament is full of warning to the Christians and admonitions to the pastors in this age. We are told that there would be wolves in sheep's clothing, meaning ungodly men preaching as Christians. This couldn't happen because we are too smart to be fooled. (Kenneth Copeland, Rodney Howard-Browne, Jesse Duplantis, Benny Hinn, Paul Crouch, Joyce Meyer, T.L. Osborne, Oral Roberts, Jimmy Bakker????? etc.) We are warned about believing Jewish fables. We would never fall for Jewish fables. They would come saying Jesus is the Christ and deceive many. They would never deceive me. The time would come that if it were possible they would deceive the very elect. That's not possible. The words woe unto the pastors is repeated many times and the strongest admonition against them is, they are all dumb dogs, unable to speak. I think all pastors have one thing in common, they all feel these verses refer to other pastor5s. I suggest reading Jeremiah 50:6.

I am aware of the fruits of the great Christian faith of early America, and now I see the fruits of the new Judeo-Christian religion that watched this once great city on a hill turn into that of Ancient Rome. By their fruits ye shall know them. I feel certain, that what God said to the prophets in Isaiah 23:22, would definitely apply to our pastors today. But if they had stood in my council, and had caused My people to hear My words, then they should have turned them from their evil ways and from the evil of their doings. Since we in Christendom are the only people that fulfill all

Pope Francis appeal for unity.

Doug Batchelor does an analysis of the heart-felt appeal of Bishop Tony Palmer and Pope Francis for unity of the churches. He calls the Reformation, Luther's protest, and says it was only dealing with 'by grace alone are we saved' and that the protest is now over. Tony Palmer says that the churches can all be one through the charismatic experience, and that doctrine does not matter.

the identifying marks of Israel, and the only people He gave His perfect Law of liberty to, are the ones that God holds responsible for the demise of our nation. Oh Israel, thou hast destroyed thyself. Hosea 13:9.

My people are destroyed for lack of knowledge; and my people love to have it so.

Something to think about:

The Bible Says: Luke 12:32, Fear not little flock for it is your father's good pleasure to give you the kingdom, and we shall reign on the earth, and His Kingdom is forever. Revelation 5:10, Isaiah 9:7, and Luke 1:33

Today's Churches Teach:

Fear not little flock for it is your father's good pleasure to take you to heaven when you die, then bring you back to earth for your resurrection, then after a period of time, take you back to an intangible heaven in the sky to spend eternity. You can take the Bible for what it says, or go the popular way of deception. What will you believe?

THE CHURCH MUST CALL FOR EXODUS FROM THE PUBLIC SCHOOLS

by Lee Duigon

When are Christians going to get it through their thick skulls that the public schools are not their friend? Some years ago, a friend of mine was substitute-teaching fifth grade at one of our local schools. Just in passing he happened to mention the Ten Commandments. You would've thought he'd dropped his pants: the children were appalled. "Oooh!" they gasped in unison. "That's religion!" As if "religion" were pornography.

At about the same time, another friend's daughter came home from middle school prattling about "the spiritual power of the Earth." Apparently that kind of religion was perfectly all right. I doubt it's gotten better in the intervening years. Case in point, in the news a few days ago: "Teacher Tells First Grader Not to Talk About Bible in School."

At an elementary school in Riverside, California, a little girl was fulfilling a show-and-tell assignment to "share your family's Christmas tradition." She displayed her family's "Star of Bethlehem" and started to read the Bible verse explaining what the star is all about—and the "teacher" stopped her cold, ordering her back to her seat. Because she was the only one to address the actual meaning of Christmas—which is, after all, beyond all possible dispute—she was the only child the "teacher" silenced.

When the girl's parents objected, and anti-discrimination lawyers cruised into the picture, school officials courageously declined to comment.

If you want your children to be exposed, day-in and day-out, to "gender coaching," earth worship, the joys of Big Government, coercive redistribution of wealth, and hissing, spitting hatred of Christianity, you can't do better than the public schools. By all means send them there, if that's what you want; because that's what you're gonna get, and in great big doses.

Why is the Church, all denominations (well, maybe not all of them), not crying out for a mass exodus of Christian children from the public schools? Would the churches be just as silent, just as inert, if their congregants were sending their children to Islamic schools? On second thought, don't answer that. It might turn out to be a "yes."

The Church is timorous, flaccid, pietistic. The Church is blah. It can hardly be called a church at all, according to Biblical standards. It sits there like a wax dummy while its children, by the millions, are herded off to the anti-Christian public schools to be taught that homosexuality is a virtue, abortion is a right, Evolution is the truth, government is the answer, and above all, that the Bible is a hate-filled collection of fictional stories and is wrong, wrong, wrong about everything.

Real churches, faithful churches, wouldn't stand for that. Real shepherds don't let their flocks be fed poison. Real churches would be helping parents by setting up Christian schools, providing assistance in homeschooling, and forcing their congregations to yank their heads out of the sand and see what's going on. Real church leaders would be leading their people out of Pharaoh's schools, not standing on the sidelines, wringing their hands, or whistling, grinning, and saying "What, me worry?"

While the churches of the Western world fiddled and faddled, the servants of antichrist took over our culture—especially the schools. It wasn't done in secret, nor was it accomplished in the blink of an eye, by magic. But Christian parents are in denial because the public schools are "free" and seductively convenient, and the Church has been content to have them so. It's so much easier than strenuously laboring to feed Jesus' lambs—not on simple-minded fables that tell them what they want to hear, but on the truth. ("We wouldn't last a minute if we told the truth!")

Amos 3:2                                  Luke 1:68-75

OUR READERS SAY:

Dear Hank, I enjoy reading the Covenant Messenger. Some very interesting articles each month. Regards, NSW

---

You will have noticed that some pages of last month were printed with colour inkjet. This is because we are still experiencing a problem with our big printer's ink printer. It is still not fixed, and so this newsletter will also be printed by inkjet. It may look better with the colour, but it does cost more to produce. We could do with a few more subscribers to help cover the expenses. Also because a number of people have seen fit to be dropped from the list.

Due to some computer problems, we have been unable to print an up-to-date literature list. We are working on getting a new list to where it can be printed and sent out. It is time-consuming to get all the information re-compiled. CDs are available with the latest PDF catalog - although that is an evergrowing work to keep updating - a constant work-in-progress (@ $5 posted).

As we will be having many family members and their families come to stay with us early in April, I expect the May newsletter to be a little late again - hopefully not too late. Many thanks to those who continue to send names of friends and relatives, and for the orders and donations that help to keep things going. May the God of our forefathers bless you and keep you, and make His face shine on you and give you His peace and protection,
